

Cutting Edge Therapies for ADHD, Learning Disorders and Autism

For Parents, Caregivers and Practitioners Concerned About
Our Children's Health

Four Part Discussion Series

Parents of children with ADHD, sensory integration problems, learning disorders and autism looking for new therapies will want to attend a series of workshops on the topic presented by Developmental Delay Resources (DDR). DDR is a non-profit resource network integrating conventional and holistic approaches for parents and professionals who support children with special needs.

Dr. Scott Theirl, functional neurologist and a DDR board member, will host a series of four presentations exploring the locally available alternative treatments and therapies to help children reach their optimal function.

"With the conservative estimate of 1 in 110 children struggling on the autism spectrum and 1 in 6 with a neurodevelopmental delay, there is clearly a need for new and innovative ideas. These children and their families need all the support they can get from their doctors, their teachers and their communities."

--Scott Theirl, DC, DACNB, FACFN

Parents, grandparents, caregivers and practitioners working with these kids are encouraged to bring their questions. Meet others and gain insight into emerging therapies and support available for your child.
